Corvallis High School Theatre Teacher

Dear Parent or Guardian,

I would like to take this opportunity to welcome you to our extended theatre family and tell you how excited I am to have your child in Introduction to Theatre. Our course meets every day for the entire semester and during that time there are a few activities that I like you to be aware of and some that require a signed permission slip.

We will begin our technical theatre unit on Friday, September 11. This means students will begin periodic work in the scene shop using the school's power tools and backstage practicing with the rigging and lighting equipment. This usage involves safety training, certification, and supervised usage of the following equipment: corded drills, hand tools, rigging lines, counterweight systems, lighting instruments, sound equipment and the theatre catwalks.

While the students will be learning the proper terminology and use of the equipment, they will not be permitted to use anything without direct supervision. In addition, students must dress appropriately to maintain utmost safety standards. This dress includes shoes that cover the whole foot (flip flops or open toed shoes will not be permitted), clothing that allows the student to crawl around on the floor or crawl up a ladder without sacrificing modesty, and hair that is pulled back and out of the face. Safety goggles and ear protection will be provided when needed. Failure to comply with these policies will result in immediate removal from the shop or theatre and a subsequent failing grade on the day's activities. Our tech unit will wrap up with the examination on Wednesday, September 30.

All work clothes and this signed permission slip are due in class no later than Friday, September 11th. Students who do not have their permission slips or who are not adequately prepared in terms of dress and safety will not be permitted to being training and will consequently be a day behind.

Part of this course is watching and reviewing various theatrical forms from on-stage performances to movies and television clips. One of the movies I generally show is Shakespeare in Love and another is Waiting for Guffman. Both of these films are rated R due to brief scenes involving either language or sexuality. I am trying to find edited versions of the movies, but have not located any yet. While I am pretty quick on the remote for fast forwarding though those scenes, I would still like your permission for your child to watch them. If you object then your child will be given an alternative assignment to complete in the library or shop while the rest of the class watches the movie. There won't be any test questions on the content of the movies, but each film is useful in illustrating different styles of theatre during our unit on theatre history.

Finally, I would like to take this opportunity to invite you to our drama department BBQ potluck and informational presentation at 5:30 pm on Friday, September 18th. I will talk about the season and all of the wonderful plans we have for this year. Students will also sign up for different activities including our Orlando trip planned for Spring Break 2010. All are welcome! Hamburgers, veggie burgers and hot dogs will be provided by the department and side dishes to share are requested based on the first letter of your last name. If you are planning to come please indicate your RSVP on the permissions slip so that I can keep track of how much meat to buy.
